

FLEMING OBTAINS FAVORABLE VERDICT

Pennsylvania - Fowler Hirtzel McNulty & Spaulding, LLC

Alison Fleming recently tried a case in Bucks County, representing the driver in a rear-end motor vehicle case with adverse liability. The plaintiff, represented by Morgan and Morgan, had suffered a right shoulder injury leading to an arthroscopic repair and had a prior right shoulder injury, eight years before the subject accident. Plaintiff's expert diagnosed her with a brachial plexus injury two and a half years post incident and claimed she would incur $145,000 in future medical costs in their care plain.

Our client was employed by a township, therefore, Plaintiff had to prove permanent loss of a bodily function in order to recover non-economic damages. The jury came back with $40,000 in economic damages and found no permanent loss of a bodily function, awarding zero dollars in non-economic damages.
